

Solidarity

What is solidarity? Everyone understands it in their own way. In my opinion solidarity includes such things as – trust, unity, cooperation, equality and support. Each of these factors includes other things. Like, cooperation includes ideas and responsibility, and support includes love and financial support. It is how I understand solidarity meaning. I will try to explain how I understand these 5 main points and how they all are linked together.

Trust includes relations and help. You can't help someone if he doesn't trust you and you can't be in relationships without trust. Trust is the main thing in solidarity. For example, you must trust a doctor and then he will be able to help you. Trust is a thing, which is very difficult to earn, but very easy to lose. Trusted relationships can be between organizations, persons and states. Nowadays young generation doesn't understand word trust meaning. There are a lot of divorces between couples, frauds between enterprises and so on.

Support I understand as love and financial support. Many institutes need financial support from the state to develop their work. For example, hospitals need new equipment, police officers need newer, faster cars and so on. Speaking about love, we can love many things. For example, there are a lot of people who love nature. They give any support they can to save the habitats of many endangered species, to save rainforests and to save the water and air from pollution. These people trust and help each other. Between these people, there are trust, unity, cooperation, equality and support. These green organizations are the best example of solidarity.

Unity includes, in my opinion, strategic alliance and such thing as – all for one and one for all. What is meant by strategic alliances? It is alliances between countries, for example, European Union and NATO. In European Union all participating countries became as one large country, without borders and one currency. That is unity. All for one and one for all – example of this, is army. Soldiers must work as one to survive the dangers and stay alive. Soldier alone can't do much, but all the squad can do a lot.

Cooperation is ideas and responsibility. Cooperation is then many persons or organizations come together to do things, for example, create a project. Then there are many persons, then there are many ideas and it is easier to create qualitative project. Responsibility refers also to army. Soldiers on the battlefield are responsible about their comrades. They can't leave them to die. In such situations appear such things as – unity, trust, support, cooperation and equality. One more example of solidarity is army.

Equality shows that all the people are equal. Only differences between them are a look, luck, language and other such things. Poor people are poor, because they haven't been lucky to be born into rich family. So the rich persons should share their money with these homeless people. Rich persons could come together and create project about home for these homeless persons. But this won't happen. There are only few rich persons who are ready to share their money for charity. Many think that they are better than other people.

In summary I can tell that in nowadays world there is solidarity. In some places more, in some less. World can't be imagined without solidarity. Chaos is the definition for place without solidarity.
